EDITORIAL REVIEWS Stunningly excellent... a truly wonderful, gorgeous book Confronting the Darkness: By Sarah Tun: This stunningly excellent book totally surprised me! Why? Well to start with it is a distinct rarity that I read a novel. I read factual books. I was sent a copy of this book which I looked upon with some trepidation owing to my struggle with novels. How wrong I was to be even a little concerned by my usual reticence for reading this type of book; even more so as it is predominantly aimed at the childrens marketplace. I was truly amazed as to how I started the book and could not put the book down. I read from cover to cover in one go. It is a truly wonderful, gorgeous book that would bring joy to any child's reading time. Personally, I think that this book would aim towards young (ish) girls/teens, aged 9 -14. It is a truly joyous book; with beautiful descriptive quality throughout. Sarah Tun writes wonderfully bringing the dark mysterious and worrying start of the book through a joyous encounter with Jasper's protectors which brings light and love back to the world; dispersing the evil that endeavours to destroy Jasper, her family Jasper even gets to help her scientist Father solve a huge question concerning the Universe I shall not tell you what that is read this glorious book, and find out yourself. Andrew Charles, MBA From the very first pages, this book will grasp your total attention and you won't put it down. With great creativity and a lot of fantasy, the writer describes, in an excellent way, the spiritual world in which this little girl of ten (Jasper) lives through events that seem more real to her than her physical world. The book is for all the ages. Don't miss your opportunity to read this book for free. Blessings, Julia Casada
