

Photojournalist: In the Middle of Disaster (Risky Business)

Meet John Isaac at his office in the United Nations building in New York City. He'll show you the many incredible photographs he has taken around the world during the past 25 years. You'll see dramatic images from Bosnia, Rwanda, the Persian Gulf, and many other places. You'll also hear John's stories about the heartbreaking things he's witnessed as an official photographer for the United Nations. Many people in our world face the unique demands of special careers. Some work at jobs that protect us and our families from danger. Others have learned skills needed to provide a special service or perform in a special way. The Risky Business series gives you an up-close-and-personal profile of people who do things most of us would never dream of doing. As you read about them, you'll find out what worries them and what excites them about their jobs. You'll also learn how each person trained to become an expert in his or her field. Grades 2-5; 7 1/2 x 9; 32 pages; 25-30 large-format, full-color photos; Sturdy library binding; Index; Further Reading
