

Home Health Aide On-the-Go In-Service Lessons: Vol. 10, Issue 3: Discharge to Community

OVERVIEW Patient discharge preparation is a crucial element in completing a successful transition of care. By using their relationship with the patient to encourage adherence to the plan, home health aides play a valuable role in getting the patient ready for discharge. This in-service outlines the role aides play in the discharge process and details how they can promote patient self-management skills, as well as obedience to diet, medication, and exercise regimens. LESSON OBJECTIVES After completion of this program, the home health aide will be able to: - Describe his or her role in preparing the patient for discharge - Identify patient self-management skills - Describe specific activities of daily living (ADL) the patient/caregiver must master safely prior to discharge - Identify and discuss expected patient outcomes prior to discharge Contents of this lesson: - A clearly written fact sheet - A 10-question post-test to measure understanding of the subject matter - An answer sheet with a place for the instructors comments and signature - An illustrative, homecare-specific case study - Suggested supplemental learning activities - An attendance log and certificate of completion
