

Vampires of Camelot: Merlins Revenge Part Two (Volume 2)

Preface All of Merlins attempts have failed him and he is faced with a dire future. Merlin tries to regain his hope when he sees that Solana did not perish in the battle.

He is renewed with vigor and strength when he sees Tarnish on Avalons horizon yet is puzzled when Tarnish arrives with Uther Pen Dragon at his side. Merlin is perplexed by this new knight and wonders about his true nature. Norrick grows tired and Ursulas health is still failing. They have both begun to age quite rapidly for unknown reasons. Mab wants to be all powerful and rule the world, but she has one weakness-- the sun. She knows she has to overcome this, but how? Mab asks the telling pool in the sorcerers chamber how she can walk in the light once again. The pool replies, That there are only few ways she can do this. One way is to eat the fruit of the gods, she can drink the blood of a centaur, or she can immerse herself in the waters of this telling pool. Mab thinks about her options carefully and decides that her best course of action is to immerse herself in the telling pool. Mab becomes impervious to sun light. She travels to the castle to put her plan into action. Mab ventures to the castle and begins to build her elite army of vampires to take over the lands and rule. She invokes the spirit of Gallian into the body of Invictus and spreads her evil through the realm. Mab and Gallian race to the forest. Once there, they meet up with Helena and the tree creatures. Gallian and Mab wreak havoc on the tree creatures for their disloyalty to them. Gallian begins with talks of peace and harmony while waiting for all the tree creatures to assemble. He begins the slaughter with Mab at his side. Mab cuts down the tree creatures; agony and mayhem ensue as swords of fire are summoned. The swords fly in a circular motion and set the tree creatures ablaze, leaving only ash and smoke in their wake. Gallian is pleased with himself. He takes
